Andrew is a distinguished barrister, recognised as a leading silk in both Financial Crime and General Crime, with notable rankings in Chambers and Partners and Legal 500. His expertise spans a wide range of areas, including financial crime, tax law, POCA (Proceeds of Crime Act), serious and organised crime, and regulatory issues.

In the field of financial crime, Andrew has represented high-profile individuals, corporate clients, and government agencies in cases involving fraud (both civil and criminal), money laundering, bribery, and asset recovery. His experience includes advising on pre-charge matters and handling complex legal issues. He has been involved in landmark cases such as defending a corporate financier accused of conspiracy to defraud in connection with a stockbroker's handling of a rights issue, and a major share trading fraud involving market manipulation.

Andrew's serious crime practice is equally impressive, covering murders, serious organized crime, firearms offenses, corruption, and drug-related matters. He is regularly instructed by both the defence and prosecution, known for his in-depth knowledge and renowned cross-examination skills.

In addition, Andrew has a robust tax law practice, with experience representing clients before the First Tier and Upper Tier Tax Tribunals, particularly in matters related to civil recovery, unexplained wealth orders, and asset forfeiture. He has substantial experience in confiscation proceedings under the Proceeds of Crime Act.

Until recently, Andrew served as a Crown Court Recorder, adding to his comprehensive expertise and reputation in the legal field.
